

FINE TRIBUTE TO WASHINGTON

Napoleon's Eulogy of the World's Greatest Man Regarded as Worthy of Eternal Preservation.

Approach of the hundredth anniversary of the death of Napoleon Bonaparte recalls the order of the day which he issued in his capacity as first consul, to the French army on the occasion of the death of the first President of the United States. The document is as follows:

"Soldiers! Washington is dead! This great man fought against tyranny. He consolidated the liberty of his native land. His memory will always be cherished by the French people, as well as by all free men of the two worlds, but more especially by the soldiers of France, who, like himself and the soldiers of America in times past, are fighting for equality and liberty. In recognition thereof, the first consul orders that for ten days all the standards and flags of the troops of the republic shall be draped with crape. (Signed) Bonaparte."

Not content with this, Bonaparte insisted that an official eulogy of the liberator of America should be pronounced, in the name of the republic, in the Temple of Mars, the name then given to the chapel of the Palace of the Invalides. The task was confided to Marcellin de Fontane, the poet, who was given six days to prepare it. De Fontane accomplished his task to the satisfaction of Bonaparte, and it is generally agreed that his eulogy of Washington ranks among his very finest works.

HERO OF THREE COUNTRIES

South American Republics United in Their Desire to Do Honor to Memory of Bolivar.

The unveiling of a statue to Simon Bolivar, known as the George Washington of South America, took place in New York April 19.

There are statues of Bolivar in Caracas, Bogota, Lima and elsewhere. He was South America's superhero on horseback. He drove the Spanish out. He became "Jefe Supremo" of the northern half of the continent. ("Hey-fay Soopraymaw," please, signifying "Supreme Chief.") He fought 400 battles and escaped five attempted assassinations.

Bolivar has been described as "mercenary, impractical, visionary, recklessly daring, valiant, sympathetic, cunning, sensitive, intense, ambitious, with no sense of proportion, cruel and kind in the same breath, giving vent to the highest sentiments of frenzied patriotism, and practicing the most absolute despotism." History credits him with having spent 90 per cent of his large fortune for his country, Venezuela, and with having made no private use of public funds, although long in control of the revenues of Colombia, Peru and Bolivia. He failed in an attempt to unite all those countries under one flag, lost his power and popularity and died in exile.

Would Teach Youth to Think.

To teach people to think, Dr. C. A. Merckel of Dornmouth left $100,000 to be used to fund a chair of national logic and scientific method at one of the universities. Among the conditions imposed are clauses directing that: Students are not to be taught what Aristotle or anyone else thought about reasoning, but to think and reason clearly for themselves. The professor is not to be chosen for his knowledge of the work or opinions of other logicians, but for his capacity to think and to reason and to teach. In selecting the professor preference is to be given to the candidate who does not know either Greek or German and, in any case, when appointed, such professor is not to devote more than one-twelfth of his teaching time in teaching the logic of Aristotle and the schools, nor more than one-twenty-fourth in teaching the logic of Hegel or other Germans.—Montreal Family Herald.

An Irish King in Tahiti.

James Norman Hall has stirred up a veritable tumult in South Boston. In an article in Harper's Magazine he tells of meeting on a South Sea Island an Irishman named Riley. Originally a native of Boston the son of an Irish immigrant, Riley is now the king of a South Sea Island, with untold riches, a beautiful Tahitian queen, and hundreds of loyal subjects, all according to the best traditions of romance.

But who is he? Son Boston is largely populated by Rileys, and Mr. Hall does not specify to which branch of the family his hero belongs. Since the publication of the article there are but few of his name who do not claim kinship with the South Sea monarch who, since, as everybody knows, all the Rileys are descended from the ancient king of Ireland, is but enjoying his natural right in ruling from a royal throne—or hammock.

Oil Shells to the Rescue.

Oil thrown on the waves will calm them. Hence it has been suggested that oil shells be fired from life-line guns in the coast guard stations, to calm the waters around stranded ships.

If the oil shells are hurled well to the windward of a ship, and are made to explode on contact with the water, the oil will soon drift around the ship and make it possible for a lifeboat to be launched in safety.

An ideal oil shell would be one that could carry a gallon of oil.—Popular Science Monthly.

ANGLO-JAP ALLIANCE WILL NOT

Involve America—U. S.-Jap Friendship Declared to be Necessary.

London, June 23.—Baron Hava-shi, the Japanese ambassador to Great Britain, in an interview to-day expressed entire agreement with the views expressed at the Imperial conference concerning the Anglo-Japanese alliance, adding that he was sure his opinion was shared by the Japanese government. Obviously, said the ambassador, no Japanese government and no sane Japanese could regard the alliance as in any way envisaging strife with America.

"Friendship with the United States," declared the ambassador, "is an absolute necessity for Japan, not only politically, but also commercially, for trade relations with the United States is one of our greatest assets."

Contending that it was essential for the peace of the world that the utmost friendliness should prevail between France, Great Britain, the United States, Japan and China, Baron Hava-shi referred to what he was pleased to term the existing misunderstanding about China, saying:

"We regard China as in no way inferior and wish her to be on terms of equality with other nations. We want politically what we already have financially in the international consortium."

The ambassador concluded by declaring that naval disarmament would be an inestimable boon for the world, and repeating the conviction that the Japanese government was ready to discuss disarmament and come to an arrangement with France, Great Britain and the United States.

NEW GUINEA HEAD-HUNTERS

Periodical Forays Were Until Comparatively Recently a Regular Thing in the Island.

Until six years ago head-hunting was in full swing along the coast of New Guinea, writes Rev. E. Cappers in Catholic Missions, and describes one of these expeditions by the tribe of the Marind-anim or Kaya-Kayas. The practice, he says, has been considerably checked by military expeditions. Nevertheless head-hunting is still quite frequent in the interior. On the appointed day men, women and children would hasten to the point of embarkation. At the approach of their goal the boats were anchored, and the entire party stealthily entered the forest, taking care not to give the alarm. Extra care was needed once the designated spot had been reached. On the day before the attack the hunters kept hidden in the bush, and during the night they advanced far enough to launch the attack early before dawn. Occasionally, the hunters were hotly received, but most of the time the intended victims were roused from their sleep by the sudden war-cry of the whole attacking party, and had no time to defend themselves. Victims were felled by the dozen, many of them pierced through by the sharp-pointed arrows.

The victors yelled their war-cry and repaired to their native haunts, where days and nights of feasting awaited them with song and dance, around the gruesome trophy.

GOT JOHN BURROUGHS' 'GOAT'

Great Naturalist Admitted That Iron Wall of Treasury Vault Had Bad Effect on Him.

It was while sitting in front of the iron wall of the treasury vault at Washington that John Burroughs, guardian of the $50,000,000 the vault contained, wrote his first book, "Wake Robin." In that book it has been thought that he got closer to nature than in any of the others. "Perhaps I did," he said of it. "I know I was closer to it in longing. That iron wall reacted on me."

Mr. Burroughs realized, of course, the necessity of money to provide the comforts of existence, and his books brought him a handsome return. And this recalls an incident of a fox hunt in which he and his brother, Eben, joined about a dozen years ago. Eben Burroughs lived at Hobart, in the Catskills, and on this particular hunt the honors went to Eben, who shot the fox. At that time fox skins were worth about $5, and the successful brother relished telling of his success. Once when boasting of it to a party of friends he was halted by this from Brother John: "You have bragged about that fox hunt long enough. You shot the fox and sold the skin for $5. I wrote a little account of the hunt and sold it to a magazine for $75. So there you are."

SOUTHERN PINE FOR PAPER.

Birmingham Age-Herald Ships Wood to Northern Factory for Trial. A dispatch from Birmingham, Ala., says:

The Birmingham Age-Herald will to-morrow morning be published on paper manufactured from Southern spruce pine, which grows along the banks of the Warrior river and in the hilly sections of North Alabama, covering many thousands of acres.

The paper was manufactured from wood shipped to Northern mills and is declared by experts to be the equal in every respect of the newsprint made from Canadian spruce.

The Alabama pine, which is unfit for lumber, contains an unusually fine fibre, which has a thin bark, virtually no heart, and contains only a trace of resin. It grows for miles along the Warrior river, averaging from four to twenty-four cords to the acre. It requires one ton of wood to make a ton of paper pulp.

Additional tests are being made and a movement has been started to establish a large paper mill on the Warrior for the manufacture of news print paper in large quantities.

IT'S JUST CHATEAU THIERRY

World-Famous Village Apparently Is Unaware of Its Immense Historic Importance.

Chateau Thierry has patched its roots, plastered its chimneys, painted its shutters and decided to forget the war. At first every villager dreamed of making his fortune as a tourist guide. They are all back now at their old trades. It is only the good housewife who still pays attention to tourists, and then only to think black thoughts of the dust raised by the rubber neck cars that plunge without a stop through the village streets.

Over the bridge, our famous bridge, that crosses the Marne come the jolting market carts filled with beets and cabbages grown in the farm lands at the foot of Belleau Wood. There is a good deal of grumbling about the temporary wood structure that now spans the Marne, and the peasants tell you that they cannot imagine why the soldiers did not build it wide enough to let two carts pass each other.

In the Cafe des Mariniers they talk no more of the war. Instead one hears only the idle gossip that the river men have picked up. Chateau Thierry is no place for the sentimentalist who has imagined that this town of towns would live forever in awe of its memories.

A walk through the streets reveals few marks of either the German or the American occupation. In a field on the outskirts stands the skeleton of a "tin lizzie" that once did ambulance service. On the door jambs of several houses one can still read the billeting officer's stencils telling how many soldiers each house would accommodate. In one instance the owner has purposely left unpainted a square around these sacred numbers as a delicate tribute to his departed guests.—George F. Kearney in the American Legion Weekly.

EPH HAD NOTHING TO SAY

Absent-Minded Man Didn't Wait to Make Explanation of Somewhat Laughaible Situation.

Old Ephraim Davis had the reputation of being the most absent-minded man in Chenango county. One day he went to S— on various matters of business. At the tailor's he bought a new suit, which he donned, asking that his old one be wrapped up. He then went to the national bank and purchased bonds of considerable value and placed them in the breast pocket of his new suit. After doing several other errands he drove leisurely home.

Some time afterward he went to get the bonds from the pocket of his old suit. Naturally, he did not find them there. Greatly perturbed, he put on his new suit and set off for S—. There he went immediately to the bank.

"I bought some bonds here the other day," he began in his drawing voice, "and I put them right in this here pocket." His hand went up to his coat. At a sudden rustling that ensued an expression ludicrous in its mixture of shamefacedness and relief came into the wrinkled countenance. "And, by gosh, here they be!"

Without another word he turned on his heel and walked out, leaving the bank employees convulsed with laughter.—Youth's Companion.

TO REDUCE THE NAVY FORCES.

Senate and House Conferees Agree on 100,000 for Personnel.

Washington, June 23.—An agreement upon 100,000 men for the navy enlisted personnel for the next fiscal year, a reduction of about 14,000 men, was reached to-day by Senate and House conferees on the navy appropriation bill. Formal and final agreement on the bill was deferred until to-morrow, but the conferees said that they had paved the way for a complete agreement, subject to the approval of the House and Senate.

A reduction of about $80,000,000 in the Senate bill and an increase of about $18,000,000 over the House bill was said to have been virtually settled. This would bring the total outlay of the bill to about $414,000,000.

The conferees also agreed to an enlisted personnel for the marine corps of 21,000 men as compared to 24,000 proposed by the Senate and 18,000 by the House.

A compromise was reached on the Senate amendment for two airplane carriers to cost $26,000,000 each, with an initial appropriation of $15,000,000. The conferees agreed to provide only for one airplane carrier with an initial appropriation of $3,000,000.

Controversies over Senate amendments for new submarines, torpedo destroyers and aviation bases on the Pacific coast were not settled. The Senate conferees said, however, that they expected the House to accept provision for some of the Pacific bases.

The Borah amendment requesting the President to call a naval disarmament conference of Great Britain, Japan and the United States is not to be settled in conference, but will be brought before the House for a vote. This stipulation was a condition of the relinquishment by the Senate conferees of the large money increases voted by the Senate.

Overwork and Worry Dangerous.

Washington, June 23.—Insanity is on the increase, due to the World War and its aftermath, Dr. J. M. Lee, of Rochester, N. Y., declared to-day before the annual convention here of the American Institute of Homeopathy.

"Our methods of living, our methods of eating and the general hustle and tendency to worry and brood make for throwing the mental machinery out of gear," Dr. Lee said. The speaker declared that farmers were more susceptible to insanity than any other class because they work hard, worry much and have little recreation.

Poles Killed in Demonstration.

Warsaw, Poland, June 23.—Three Poles were killed and 21 wounded during anti-German demonstrations at Bromberg, a town northeast of Posen, yesterday. Seven policemen were injured during the disorder.

The trouble arose out of feeling on the part of the Poles that their countrymen, who have remained at work in German factories, were ill-treated by Germans. Mayor Maciszek, who was accused of pro-Germanism, was dragged from his office and roughly handled by Polish laborers.
